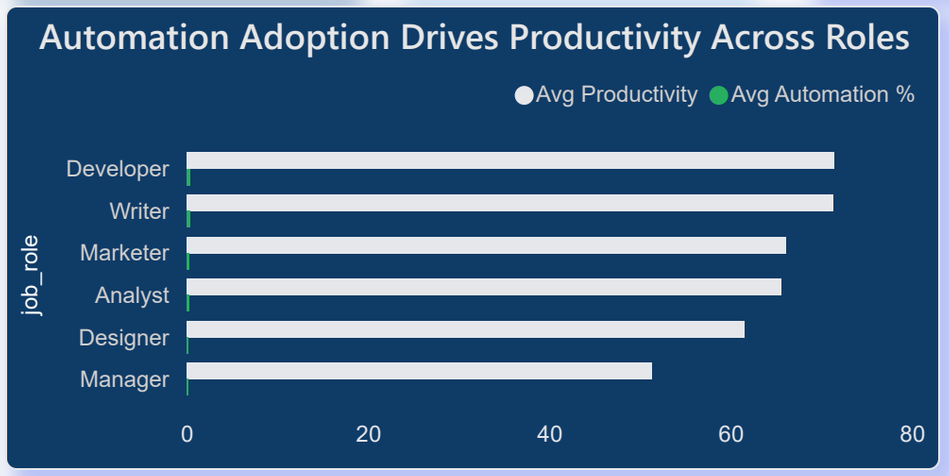
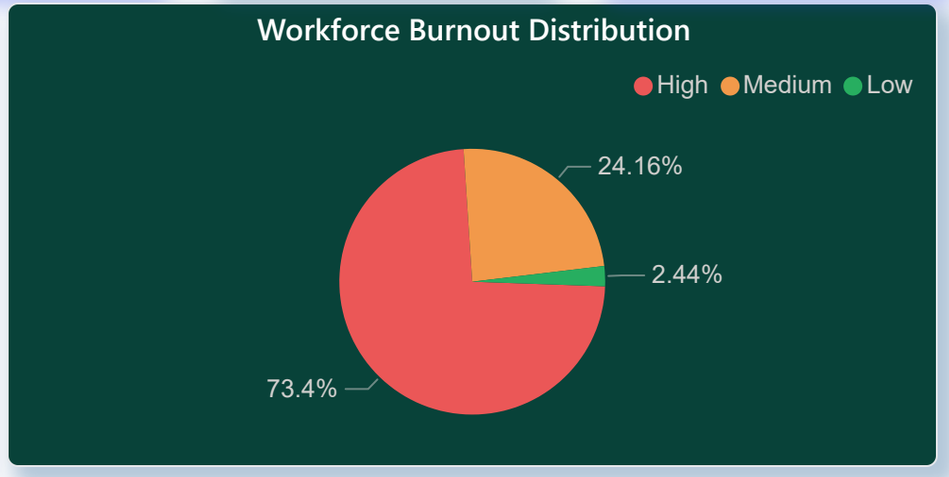
AI Adoption Impact on Productivity & Burnout

Total Employees	Avg Productivity	Avg Automation	Avg Manual work	High Burnout %	Avg Error Rate
4500	65	25.9%	22	73%	2.10

Job role

- [ ] Analyst
- [ ] Designer
- [ ] Developer
- [ ] Manager
- [ ] Marketer
- [ ] Writer



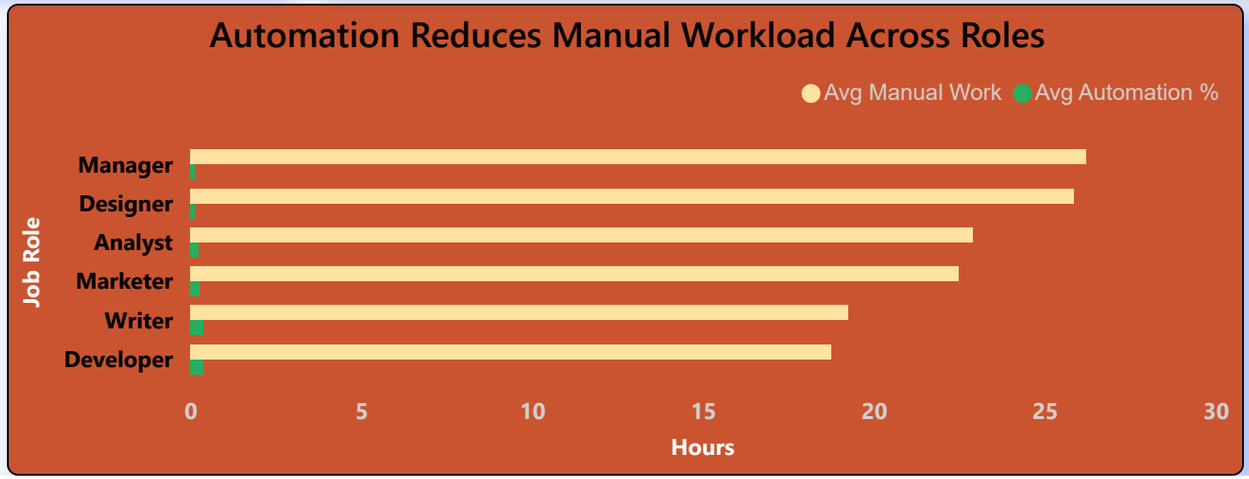


Experience years

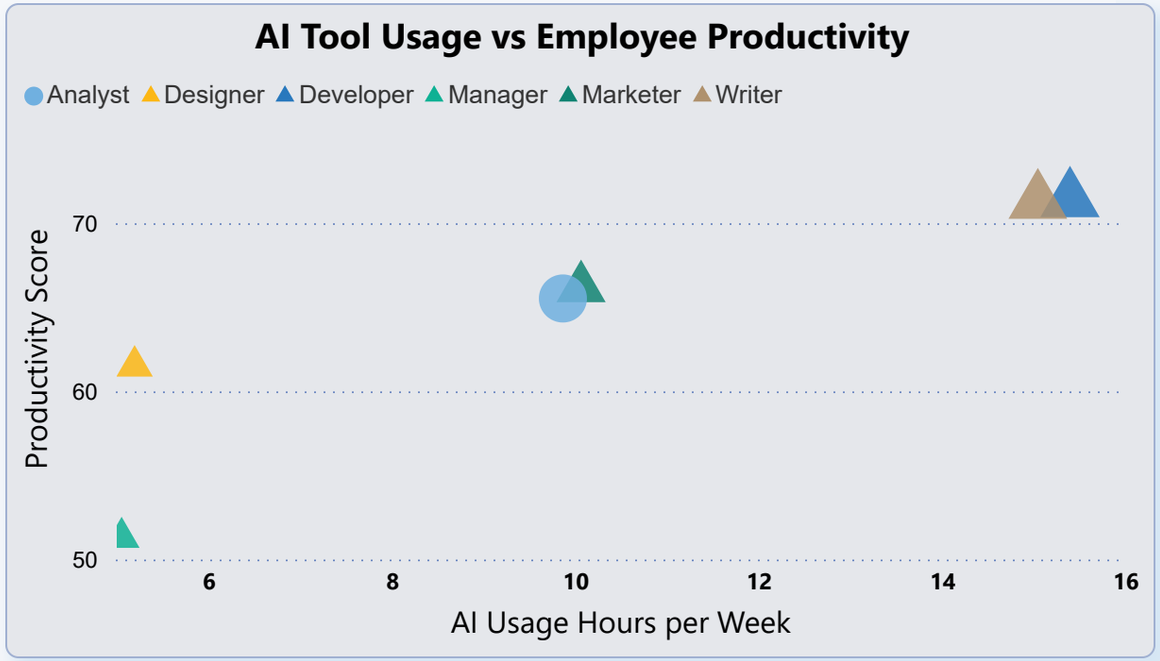
All

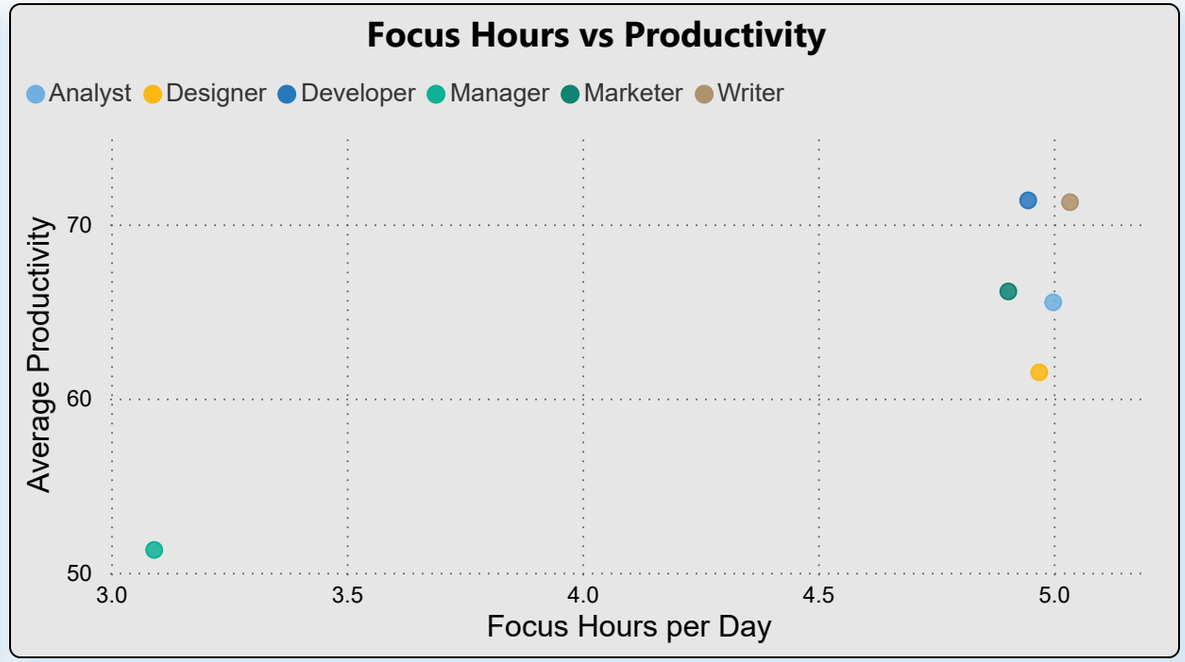
Burnout Risk Level

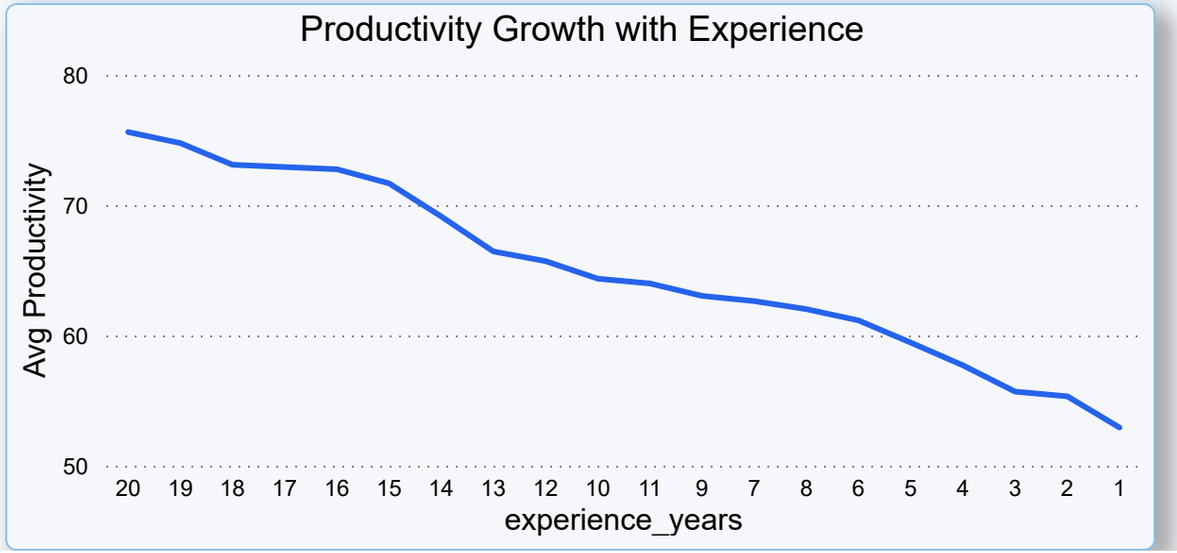
- [ ] High
- [ ] Low
- [ ] Medium



Productivity Drivers Analysis







Insights

- Employees with moderate AI usage show higher productivity
- Deep focus hours strongly correlate with productivity
- Experience contributes to consistent productivity improvements

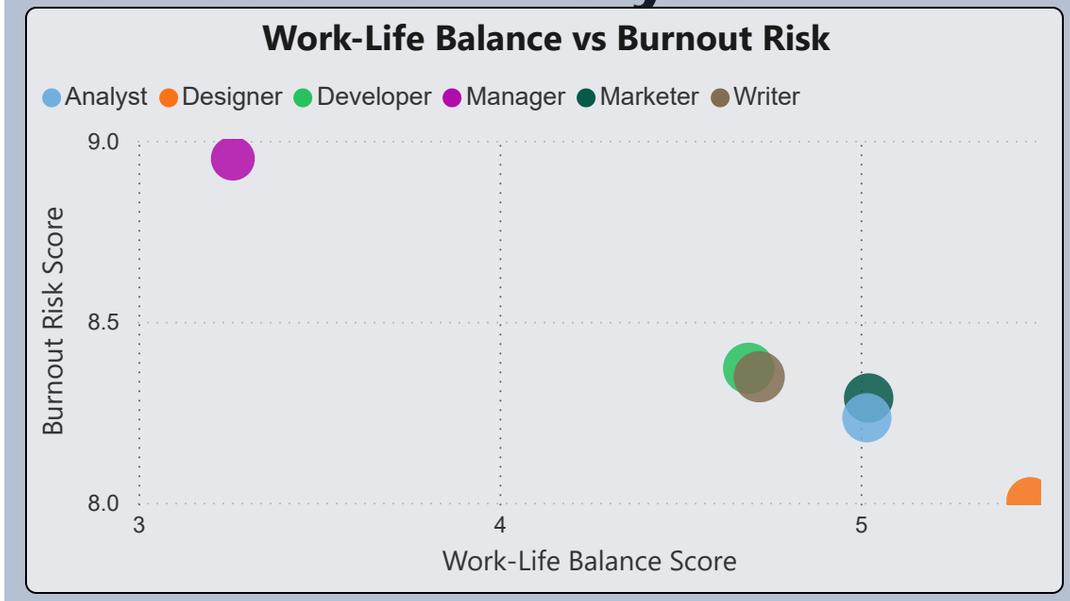
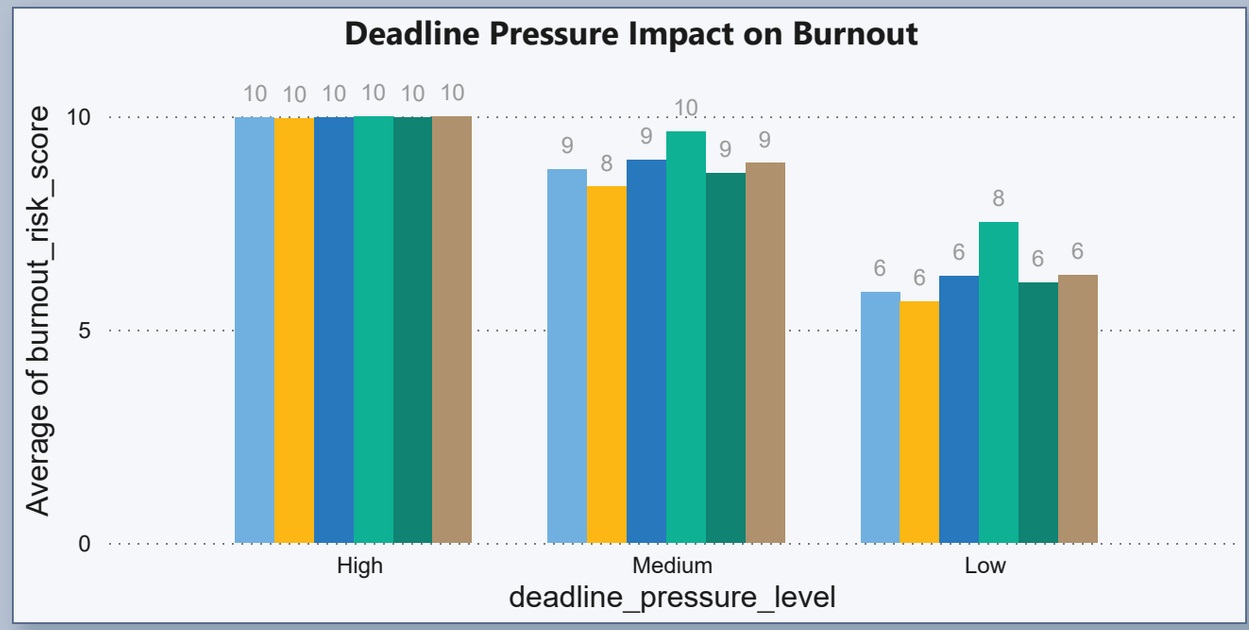
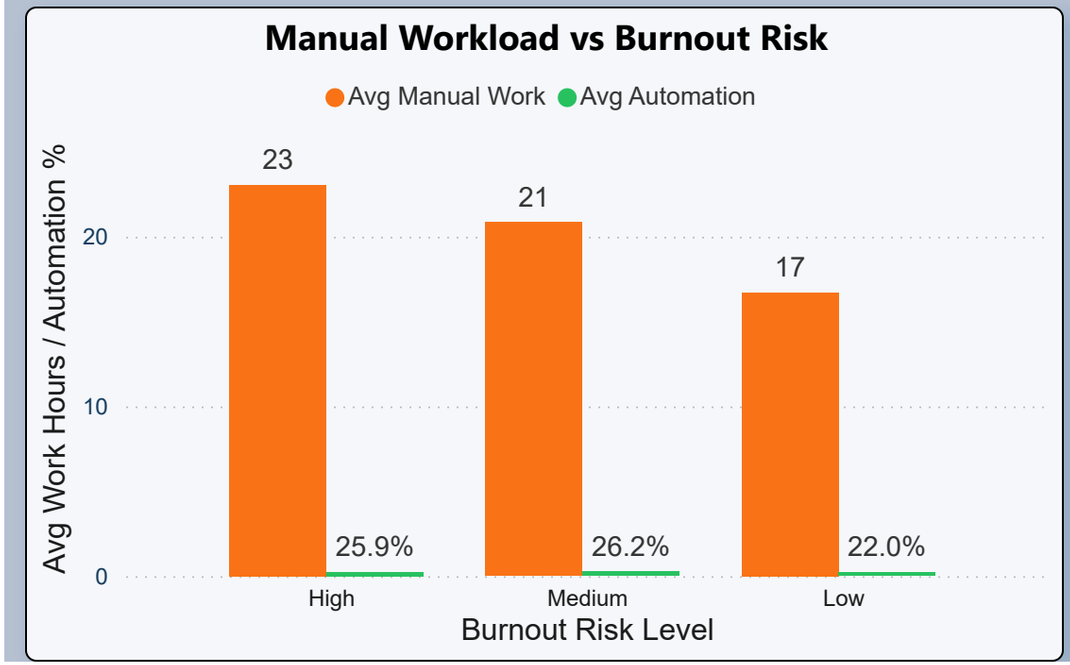
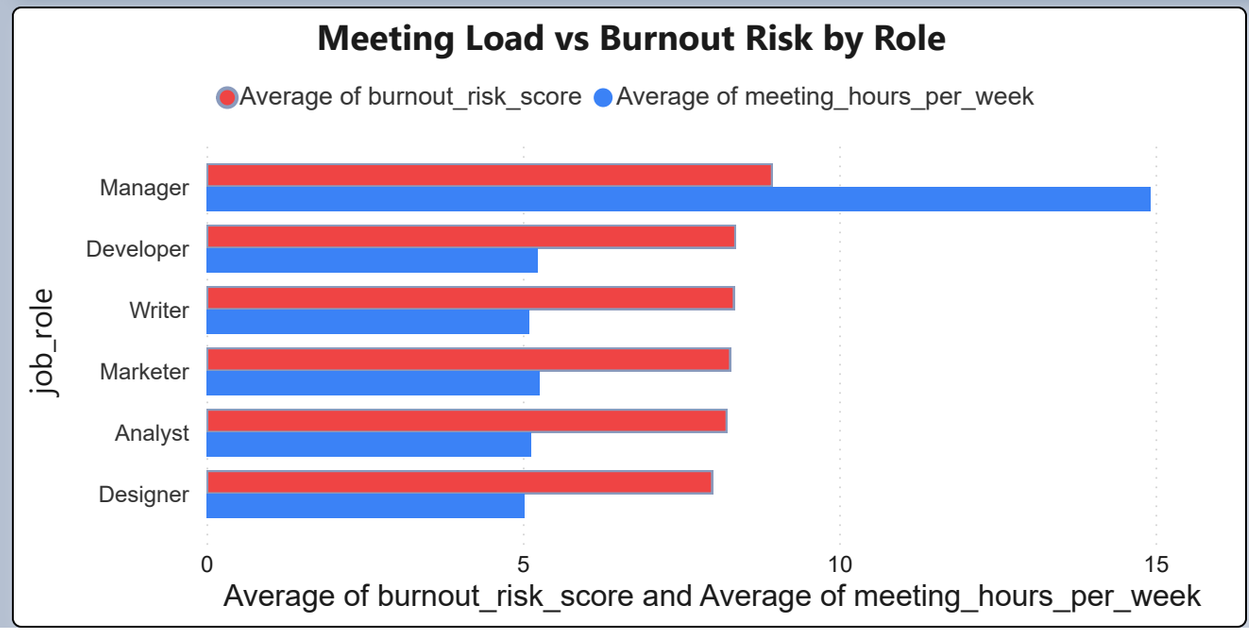
Burnout Risk Analysis









Executive Insights: AI Adoption & Workforce Productivity

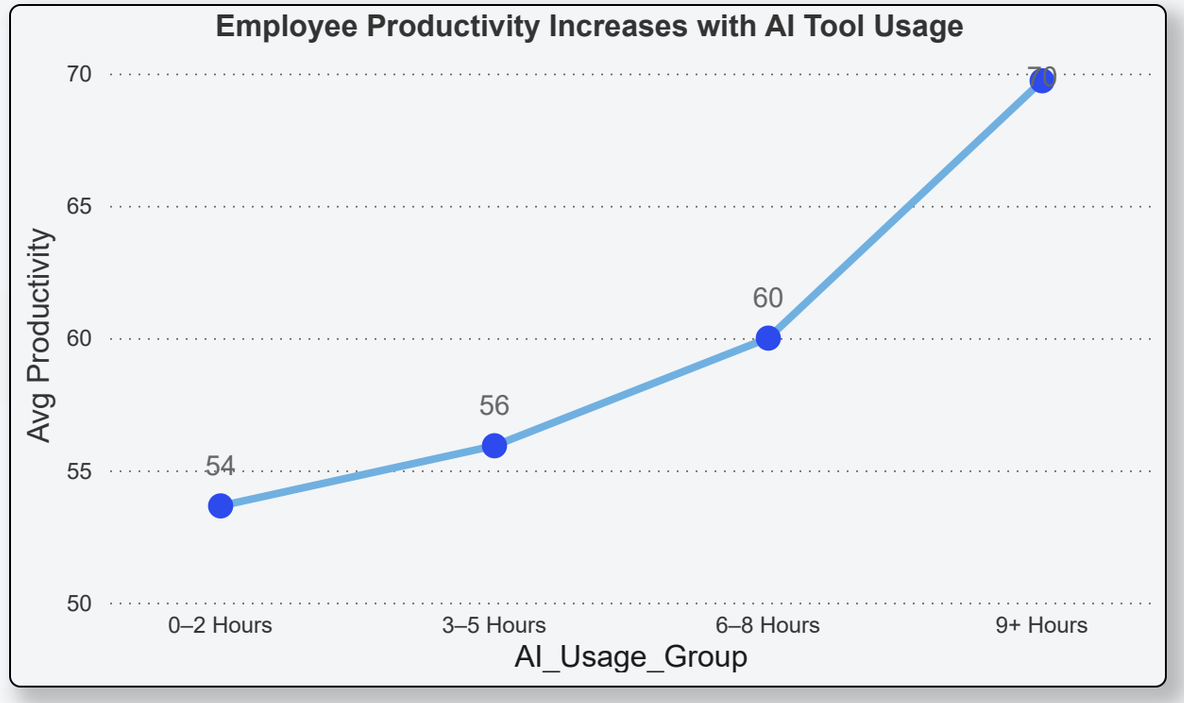
65
Avg Productivity

10.35
Avg AI Usage

73%
High Burnout %

Key Findings

- Moderate AI usage significantly improves employee productivity
- High manual workload strongly increases burnout risk
- Deadline pressure is the most critical burnout driver
- Automation reduces manual workload and improves work-life balance

Recommendations


- Encourage AI tool adoption across teams
- Reduce unnecessary meetings to lower burnout
- Automate repetitive tasks to improve productivity
- Monitor employees experiencing high deadline pressure